Councillor Blog

Welcome back, White City residents and neighbours from the surrounding area, to the April 2025 edition of the White City Councillor Blog! This month, we will be tackling municipal debt, growth and development incentives.

As a growing community, White City has made significant investments in infrastructure to support both our current residents and future development. These investments—especially in critical projects like the Wastewater Treatment Plant Expansion—have led to a municipal debt of $18.5 million. In 2025, the Town will pay $1.7 million in debt servicing which includes $902 thousand in principal and $797 thousand in interest. While these costs are mainly serviced through development levies, connection fees and the Wastewater Infrastructure Fee, it still represents a significant burden to residents and represents funds that could otherwise be invested in improving roads, recreation and other services.

Why Is Our Debt So High?

75% of the Town's debt is tied to the Wastewater Expansion Project, which was necessary to increase capacity for both existing and future residents. The existing wastewater system lacked sufficient capacity to fully support the current catchment area, making expansion necessary to maintain reliable service. Without this expansion, the Town could have faced significant service constraints, including the potential for system overloads, backups, and emergency discharge measures.

Additionally, limited capacity would have restricted property improvements for existing homeowners, such as adding secondary suites, installing additional bathrooms, or expanding their homes, as these changes increase wastewater usage. Without additional capacity, even minor increases in demand could have strained the system, leading to service disruptions and costly short-term fixes.

By investing in wastewater expansion, White City has ensured that both current and future residents have access to a stable, efficient wastewater system that supports growth while protecting public health and environmental standards.

The wastewater expansion was also required to lift the development freeze that was in place due to the system's limited capacity. While this investment enables new homes to be built, it also ensures that White City can add, or expand, current amenities within the community including much needed schools and commercial businesses to support our current and future residents.

How Growth Helps Reduce Debt and the Wastewater Infrastructure Fee

The best way to ease this financial burden on all residents is through new development. When new homes and businesses are built, they pay connection fees and development levies, which go directly toward repaying the debt, or internal borrowing, associated with infrastructure projects like the wastewater system. The more homes we build, the more new revenue is generated to help cover these costs, meaning fewer dollars need to come from existing taxpayers. With a wider tax base, the per-property impact of the debt and wastewater infrastructure fee will decrease over time. Simply put, more growth means lower costs for each resident.

Unlocking Development: The Town Centre and Beyond

Currently, White City has 77 available lots in the Town Centre. By quickly filling these lots, we can move into Phase 1B, unlocking 60 more lots for development. Every new home built means more revenue from connection fees and levies, which directly reduces our debt load and helps lower financial strain on residents.

While Royal Park is a key area of growth for White City, it's important to recognize that development is happening across the community. As we expand, we remain committed to preserving White City's small-town charm and unique character, ensuring that growth is thoughtfully planned to enhance—not change—the qualities that make our town special. By balancing progress in the Town Centre with responsible development in other areas, we can support long-term sustainability while maintaining the welcoming, connected community that residents value.

Why Tax Incentives for New Homes Benefit Everyone

Some residents have expressed concerns about offering tax incentives to encourage new home construction. It's important to understand that these incentives are a short-term investment with long-term financial benefits.

While tax incentives temporarily reduce property tax collection from newly built homes, they accelerate all types of growth, meaning:

- More connection fees and levies are collected sooner to help pay off existing debt.
- A larger tax base is created, meaning future municipal expenses (such as road maintenance, public services, and recreation facilities) can be shared across more households, reducing the burden on each individual taxpayer.
- New commercial and retail development follows residential growth, further strengthening the Town's financial position.
- Increased capacity to introduce new facilities such as schools and community centres.

Many municipalities have successfully used tax incentives to accelerate development, attract investment, and ease financial pressures on existing residents. Without incentives, development can slow down, meaning debt payments continue to be shouldered primarily by current taxpayers for longer than necessary.

Beyond just reducing debt, community growth provides several other long-term benefits:

Lower Property Tax Pressure:

More homes and businesses increase overall tax revenue, allowing the Town to keep tax rates competitive while maintaining or enhancing services. Instead of relying on existing taxpayers to fund rising costs, a larger tax base helps distribute expenses more evenly.

Better Amenities and Services:

With a growing population, there is greater demand and justification for enhanced community amenities, such as parks, recreational facilities, improved roads, and expanded public services. Growth allows White City to attract investment in these areas, improving the quality of life for all residents.

Attracting Businesses:

Residential growth often leads to increased commercial and retail investment, as businesses are drawn to communities with a strong and growing customer base. This means more local shops, restaurants, and service providers, reducing the need for residents to travel elsewhere for their daily needs.

Job Creation and Economic Opportunities:

New development not only brings more residents but also creates construction jobs, service industry employment, and business opportunities. A strong local economy benefits everyone, ensuring White City remains a desirable and sustainable place to live.

Stronger Property Values:

Communities that are growing and developing tend to see higher property values over time. A well-planned expansion strategy signals a thriving economy, making White City an attractive place to live and invest.

By encouraging responsible growth, we can ensure that White City continues to thrive while reducing financial strain on individual taxpayers. Investing in strategic development today will help us build a more financially stable, well-served, and vibrant community for the future.

A Sustainable Approach to Financial Health

White City's 2025 Annual Budget reflects our commitment to financial responsibility while ensuring the Town remains a great place to live, work, and invest. Strategic growth, supported by policies that encourage development, will help us reduce debt, strengthen our infrastructure, and keep property taxes competitive.

Your Council remains committed to balancing growth with fiscal prudence, and we appreciate your continued support as we build a sustainable future for White City.

- Mayor Mitch Simpson

Property Assessment

What is Property Assessment?

Property assessment is the process of determining the value of a property for taxation purposes. In SK, the Saskatchewan Assessment Management Agency (SAMA) is responsible for assessing properties to ensure that property taxes are distributed fairly based on property values.

How does this affect your taxes?

Your municipal property tax is calculated using your property's assessed value and the mill rate set by the Town of White City. The mill rate is a factor that determines how much tax is collected to fund town services such as roads, parks, emergency services, and more.

How revaluation could affect property taxes:

higher than average change

taxes likely increase

average
change

taxes should stay
about the same

Lower than average change

taxes likely
decrease

Appealing Your Assessment

If you believe your property's assessed value is incorrect, you have the right to appeal. The appeal process allows property owners to challenge their assessment if they feel it does not accurately reflect the value of their property as of the valuation date.

Steps to Appealing Property Assessment

- ☐ Review your Assessment Notice - carefully check the details of your property assessment when you receive your notice.
- ☐ Compare with Similar Properties - Check assessments of similar properties in your neighbourhood to see if your valuation is consistent.
- ☐ Contact SAMA First - Before filing an appeal, consider reaching out to SAMA to discuss your assessment. They can provide explanations and make corrections if an error is found.
- ☐ File an appeal - If you still believe your assessment is incorrect, submit a written appeal to the Board of Revision by the deadline stated in your notice.
 - ☐ Your appeal must include:
 - ☐ Your property's assessment details.
 - ☐ A clear reason for the appeal.
 - ☐ Any supporting evidence.
- ☐ Agreement to Adjust - In some cases, after filing an appeal, SAMA may review your concerns and agree to an adjustment before the formal hearing. If an agreement is reached, your assessment will be corrected without the need for a hearing.
- ☐ Attend Your Appeal Hearing - The Board of Revision will review your appeal and allow you to present your case.

Important Note About Appeals

- You cannot appeal your property taxes—only the assessed value of your property.
- The deadline for filing an appeal is strict.
- If you are not satisfied with the Board of Revision's decision, you may have the option to appeal further to the Saskatchewan Municipal Board's Assessment Appeals Committee.

Bins for the community fall cleaning will be at the Splash Park on Lipsett Street for Spring and Fall Clean Up. Depending on the weather, these dates may be subject to change. Please separate your items into the appropriate bins for waste, metal, and recycling. If the bins are full, we ask that you hold on to your items and dispose of them the following business day rather than piling items beside the bins. If you are unsure which bin to use please use the household/mixed waste bins.

IMPORTANT: DO NOT dispose of the following items in ANY of the bins or on the side of any of the bins.

- Concrete, shingles dirt and gravel
- Bulbs and light ballasts
- Hazardous materials
- Tires
- Propane tanks

- Railway ties, telephone poles or creosote treated wood is allowed.
- Paint
- Oil or chemicals
- Coils of wire or banding
- Appliances containing Freon
- Box spring and mattresses

Notice to residents: Please do not overfill the bins, if the bin is full please hold on to your items. Public Works is monitoring the bins and calling Loraas to arrange for pick up as soon as they're full. Overloading the bins, as seen in the photo, causes delays in pick up and pulls our Public Works crew from other jobs to empty the overfilled bin before Loraas will empty the bins. That means delays for you and your fellow residents.

Community Safety Reminders

As warmer weather brings more pedestrians to the streets, the Community Safety Officer would like to take this opportunity to remind drivers to exercise extra caution when operating motor vehicles within the community. With more people walking, running, or biking, including on roads without designated walking paths, it's important to stay vigilant. Drivers should always yield the right of way at crosswalks, watch for children, and be especially cautious in residential areas, near parks, and school zones. A little extra care goes a long way in preventing accidents.

When driving in White City, remember to drive SAFE:

Slow down and stay alert – Especially on roads without designated walking paths.

Avoid distractions – Stay focused on the road and your surroundings. Phones, food, or anything else that might distract you should be stowed away.

Foresee hazards – Anticipate potential risks and be prepared to act, especially in busy areas.

Educate others about safety – Everyone plays a role in keeping our streets safe.

Irrigation as a Time Saver Bob Baker and Jeff Holland

For the last 8 years, Bob and Jeff have been fighting the dry and windy prairie conditions, trying to turn a canola field into their own lush acreage paradise.

This has 'offered' them the opportunity to test and trial several different methods for watering trees, perennial beds and raised gardens. Bob and Jeff will share their lessons learned - as they evolved from watering by hand from a water tank in the back of a pick-up truck, to their current fully automated irrigation system operating over 2,000 drips - as well as a glimpse into their future plans.

EASTER CELEBRATIONS

The Sacrifice Worth Celebrating God's love for us is greater than we can fully understand. When we think of love, we often expect actions to show it. We may also feel that we need to deserve love in order to receive it.

However, in Romans 5:8, the Apostle Paul reminds us that God's love is not based on whether we are worthy. He writes that Christ died for us while we were still sinners. Jesus also spoke about this love in John 3:16:

"For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life" (NKJV).

Jesus' death on the cross was more than just suffering—it was a sacrifice that paid for our sins. Because of His sacrifice, we can have a personal relationship with God and live the life He planned for us.

As we celebrate Easter, let's remember what Jesus has done for us. His death and resurrection bring us hope, joy, and peace. May you have a blessed and Happy Easter! Amen.
